It's Fall In Missouri

It is fall in Missouri, and with that comes the call of the woods. As the summer tournaments came to a close, members began tearing down their target bows and getting their hunting bows ready for deer season. Their thoughts turned to where to place tree stands and trail cams so that they can have the best chances at finding that trophy buck.

The name of our organization is Missouri Bow Hunters and so I thought it appropriate to call attention to our bow hunters. Many of you shoot tournaments and a local clubs throughout the year and then shift to camouflage and blend into the forest. Some of our members never step up to that tournament line instead, they choose the peace and solitude of the magnificent outdoors. Braving those last hot days of summer along with cold chilly rain and winds, and then the wonderful crisp fall days, listening for the rustle of the leaves below them that will signal that deer are on the move. They take the shot, and instead of a gold belt buckle, their prize is taking the first deer of the season.

The Share the Harvest program is administered by the Missouri Department of Conservation and the Conservation Federation of Missouri, making funds available to the processing plants to help offset the cost of preparing the meat for donation. Many of you take responsibility for those costs when funds aren't available through the state agencies. In 2012, more than 6,000 hunters donated well over 310,000 pounds of venison to the needy. Families who might otherwise have little or no regular source of protein in their diets have you to thank for being able to make sure there is meat on the table on a regular basis. Each one of you who has participated in this program in the past by donating or who will donate this year should be proud of the contributions you are making to your community.

As bow season continues, please send your photos so they can be featured in the Release and share your stories along with them. You can send them to mbhsecretary@gmail.com.

A message from your President

Hello Everyone

The weather is slowly cooling down and the days are getting shorter. This means one thing... Bow Season. So far I have seen several pictures of some very nice deer that have been harvested this year. While everyone wants to bag that big buck, let's not forget the most important thing, safety. If you're in a stand a harness is a priceless investment, especially if your hunting alone.

Don't forget to send the pictures of your deer in to be eligible for the different awards that are available. From the first deer harvested, to the last, lucky weight deer, and many more. Also if you took a child out hunting for the first time, please send us those pictures. It is a wonderful thing when our youth get to go out into the woods to hunt.

Indoor season is fast approaching. I am sure many of you have already dusted off your indoor bow and started tuning on it. Several indoor leagues have already formed. I have also heard that many new shooters are signing up for instructional classes. It sounds like it's going to be another great indoor season. Shoot safe,

Jason Hancock

Looking Towards 2014- Bows, MBH, and Recruitment

October is upon us and fall is really starting to show its face. I've noticed the acorns and walnuts dropping constantly over the last week or so and luckily, at least down my way, the acorn crop turned out pretty decent this year. I had my fair share of experiences opening day this year but unfortunately it resulted in me coming home with only fond memories, but I'd still say that was a success all its own. I've been really busy lately between classes and getting ready for indoor season, its been tough finding time to get in the treestand. Luckily, the peak of the season is still in the future, giving me some time to plan out some prime time in the stand.

One of the things I've noticed from the last issue of the Release is the 2014 schedule of State tournaments is set. Now is the time to start planning out the next years events, if possible for yourself. One of the biggest issues lately I've heard from people is that the events are not posted long enough before a tournament to plan on going. Well, MBH has listened to the members and they definitely delivered! Other than looking for a club to bid on the 3D tournament, it appears everything is set. When you talk to your local clubs about setting schedules for next year, put the dates of the MBH shoots into the conversation. This is promising to be another great for MBH and I don't think anyone will want to miss out on these events. There are great things in the works with this administration and I look forward to seeing what MBH can do!

Right about this time of year is when the majority of bow manufacturers release their new models for the 2014 model year. Swing by your local bow shops and take one for a test drive. Take a look at the new accessories and goodies. And... when you find you something you like, buy it from a local shop! Small business is the back bone to the archery industry and the sport itself! Support your local shops!

In mid-October, Kathy Potter and I will be attending the Whiteman AFB Community Fair promoting MBH and NFAA. I look forward to coming back with a great report. I am really excited to spend some time with the people who fight for and protect our freedoms and introduce them to the great organizations of MBH and NFAA. Its programs like this that will continue to grow our numbers and help us reach new levels. Until next time, shoot some arrows and hit the treestand!

Aim Small and God Bless

CONSERVATION COMMITTEE

I attended an informational meeting conducted by the Missouri Department of Conservation on October 1st at Burr Oak Woods in the Kansas City region. This was an MDC hosted the public meeting around to provide information on Missouri deer and Chronic Wasting Diseases (CWD) and to get comments about limiting the spread of the disease among captive and free-ranging deer. People can also post comments online at mdc.mo.gov/deerhealth.

There were about 125 people in attendance including several MDC personnel. Although much of the information I heard was stuff I already knew there were several good questions and concerns from the audience that I had not heard before. The MDC provided a three person panel of experts to answer questions. Those three people were; Michael W. Hubbard Ph.D. who is the Resource Science Division Chief of the MDC, Jason Sumners MDC's State Deer Biologist, and Dr. Kelly Straka MDC's State Wildlife Veterinarian. I must say I was impressed with the knowledge and the way each of these experts handled the questions and the attitude they maintained while being questioned by some very concerned hunters and landowners who were in attendance. Dr. Hubbard answered positively about working with the Missouri Department of Agriculture on new regulations for the captive deer farms and high fence hunting operations, Jason stressed the need for everyone to get informed about CWD and the difference between it and another disease in our deer herd called Hemorrhagic Diseases (EHD or Blue Tongue), and Dr. Straka explained that CWD is caused by prions which are proteins within the deer that have malformed and attack the deer's nervous system. They don't know why these prions start to mal-form but they do know the deer cannot be cured and will eventually die although that may take up to a couple of years. During that time the sick deer can spread these prions to other deer. The best source of information about these diseases for hunters is contained on pages 2 thru 5 of the 2013 Fall Deer & Turkey Hunting Regulations and Information Booklet which you can get when you purchase your deer hunting permits or on line at <http://mdc.mo.gov/sites/default/files/resources/2010/03/fdt2013.pdf>.

This booklet also gives all of the special regulation information about the six county CWD Containment Zone. Those six counties are Adair, Chariton, Linn, Macon, Randolph, and Sullivan. We as hunters, landowners, and conservationists need to do everything we can to contain this very serious disease and protect Missouri's deer herd. If we don't the states deer herd will decline to a point that it cannot recover. As of now CWD has only been found in Linn and Macon Counties. A total of 21 deer (11 captive and 10 free ranging) have tested positive for CWD. A total of 38,000 deer have been tested in the CWD containment zone since 2010. All of the positive CWD deer were found within a 3 mile area in and around a private big-game hunting preserve in Linn and Macon Counties. One more excellent information booklet can be found at; <http://mdc.mo.gov/sites/default/files/resources/2013/08/cwdsetrecstr 8-23-13.pdf>. Spread the word, stay informed, and get educated about this very serious threat to Missouri Deer!

Happy Bow Hunting, Jeff Blystone

News From The Stump....

By : Kathy Potter
NFAA Director- Missouri

Finally!...Cool weather, hunting season and reservation/planning time for the upcoming indoor season. You just have to love this time of year!

Deer harvest pics are starting to pop up on social media tools and I expect activity will pick up as the weather cools down. As mentioned last month, please be SAFE and use your best judgment.

For those of you interested in competitive indoor 'spot' shooting, registration for some of the Midwest's finest tournaments is opening up soon! The IOWA Pro-Am is an NFAA Sanctioned event and I'd encourage you to check it out. Registration for this tournament will open up on October 15th. Lines will fill up fast, so please go online to learn more about the tournament and reserve your space! Their website is www.ISAAPROAM.com.

On a 'more local' note, registration is now open for the NFAA Sanctioned Missouri State Indoor Championship (Nov. 30-Dec. 1st, 2013). Participants are only required to shoot one day and the format is a 'Vegas Face' 450 Round which consist of 15-3 arrow ends shot at 20 yards (10 yards for Cubs). As in years past, multiple sites around the state will host the event. You can check out all details on the MBH website at www.mobowhunters.org.

I hope you've made time to check out the new and MUCH IMPROVED NFAA website that I mentioned in last month's article. The address is: www.nfaausa.com. Registration for the VEGAS SHOOT (Feb 7-9, 2014) will be available online in November, but information related to accommodations and other details are posted and available for viewing.

It's also not too early to make your hotel reservations for our 75th anniversary NFAA Indoor Nationals (Mar. 14-15, 2014). Host hotel rates and information can be found on the website. These rooms go fast!

I appreciate the opportunity to represent the NFAA members of Missouri and take this responsibility very seriously. I am interested in hearing your suggestions about growing the sport of Archery and/or building a stronger national organization and hope you will make time to reach out. We want to say a big THANK YOU to all archers who have supported our 3-D shoots this season– the turn-out has been super, with our final 3-D Shoot of the season on September 8 sporting 121 archers. We feel truly blessed, and I don't think I heard one person complain when an unexpected rain caught several unprepared in the timber that afternoon. Some top scores include Ryan Allen shooting a 182 in the Cubs I division with only A side scored. Chris Morrow and Cody Sisk dueled it out in the Male Release class, both shooting a 390 with Chris winning out with 4 more 12's. Larry Mincy turned in an impressive 397 in the Senior Class, and Justin Graham was the easy winner in the Male Open class with a score of 416 . Following the shoot, we had our annual used target auction, also a success.

Our raffle drawing for the Henry Golden Boy .22 mag rifle was held with Gary Hart of Maryville the lucky winner.

If anyone has suggestions to help us improve next year, please contact one of our officers listed in the Club Directory. Club activities will slow down after our election of officers while members pursue their hunting interests and prepare for grain harvest. Some much welcomed rain and cooler temperatures have helped get everyone excited about the hunting season before we get ready to head back indoors. Our first indoor league will start the week of Thanksgiving and our first 300 or Vegas Round indoor shoot will be held December 7&8. It sounds like a long way off, but it will be here before we know it!

Our best wishes to all for a successful hunting season– just be sure to be careful out there!!! I'm going to try to post some successes from Nodaho members.
